

JEBCAM

Sivagnanam G.

Section Editor, JPP

JEBCAM^[1] sounds like webcam (nothing to do with camera), is the acronym for the “Journal of evidence based complementary and alternative medicine.” It was formerly published in the name of Complementary Health Practice Review.

It is published by SAGE and the editor is Roger A.

Brumback, who is also the Editor-in-Chief Journal of Child Neurology.

JEBCAM, a peer-reviewed journal, may be of interest to Pharmacologists. A glance at the recent issue of JEBCAM carries articles like “Pharmacologic Use of Niacin,” “Coenzyme Q10: Clinical Update and Bioavailability,” and so on. This may be highly rewarding to postgraduates in Pharmacology and allied fields.

REFERENCE

1. Available from: <http://chp.sagepub.com/> [Last accessed on 2011 May 3].

How to cite this article: Sivagnanam G. JEBCAM. J Pharmacol Pharmacother 2011;2:218.

Source of Support: Nil, Conflict of Interest: None declared.

Access this article online
Quick Response Code:	Website: www.jpharmacol.com
	